FORMER PLAZA CONSTRUCTION CEO BRAD MELTZER JOINS TWO ROADS DEVELOPMENT AS PARTNER AND PRESIDENT

August 18, 2022

South Florida-based real estate development firm Two Roads Development announced Brad Meltzer has joined the firm as Partner and President, further strengthening its growth trajectory. In this role, Meltzer will oversee real estate development activities, as well as identify new market opportunities.

Meltzer comes to Two Roads Development with an educational background in architecture and more than 30 years of construction experience. Prior to joining Two Roads Development, Meltzer was most recently the Chairman and CEO of Plaza Construction, a leading a top national construction firm where he oversaw award-winning projects across various asset classes from inception to completion including Miami's iconic One Thousand Museum by Zaha Hadid Architects.

"We are thrilled to expand our leadership team and welcome Brad, who played an integral role in helping us deliver Biscayne Beach," said Reid Boren, Managing Partner of Two Roads Development. "His robust network and industry background will help further our momentum in current and future projects. He will work with our team to keep our projects focused on attention to design and detail throughout each phase of the building process."

His portfolio of work encompasses a wide range of project types, including condominium, multifamily, hospitality, office, and retail. Meltzer specialized in delivering high end projects such as One Thousand Museum by Zaha Hadid, the four tower Paraiso District by Arquitectonica and the Ritz Carlton Residences Miami Beach by Piero Lissoni. In South Florida, Meltzer has overseen more than a dozen projects that exceed 40 stories including multiple projects that exceeded 700 feet in height.

“I am honored to have this opportunity to join the team at Two Roads Development,” said Brad Meltzer. “I look forward to mentoring and leading a team of professionals while promoting a culture of transparency, trust, and accountability. Our ultimate goal is to create projects that we can all be proud of.”

Highly engaged in industry and community organizations, Meltzer sits on various local and national boards, including Voices for Children Board of Directors, Gulliver Prep Board of Trustees, Chair of the University of Miami School of Construction Management Industry Advisory Board, University of Miami MRED+U Advisory Board and Tulane School of Architecture Advisory Board.

He holds a Master of Architecture from Tulane University School of Architecture.
